Brief Activity Description

The 2 week trip to Taiwan is for the UNIV 392 course. Students will register for the course in Fall 2019 and travel to Taiwan in January 2020.

The Health Science Program Learning Outcomes that match well with this course are:

- Identify issues and trends in health care delivery systems and public health areas and implement solutions to better health care services to individuals and ethnically and culturally diverse populations.
- Analyze the nature, transmission, pathologic processes, prevention, and control of human diseases from a public health perspective.
- Demonstrate an understanding of health care information systems that affect service delivery with agencies and in the public.
- Demonstrate an understanding of the aging population and the ability to apply knowledge and skills in gerontology in fields from disease prevention and life extension to policy planning and social reform.

• Apply research skills in organizational and personal health settings, and in health education practice.

The Sociology Program Learning Outcomes match well with this course:

- Develop effective communication, written and oral, about the field of sociology within the classroom and through a variety of arenas including service learning, international experiences, student research, and internships.
- Obtain sociological knowledge of core areas and substantive topics and the ability to think critically about them
- Understand the role of theory in the application of conceptual frameworks in the research process
- Understand the role of evidence in the social sciences and the application of systematic empirical inquiry
- Develop professional skills for post-graduation plans within and outside of sociology
- Provide opportunities that are linked with the University's Mission Pillars to stress multiculturalism, community engagement, international experience, and interdisciplinary studies
- Be able to effectively engage with and apply their "sociological imagination" to think critically about the social world and what separates sociology from other social science disciplines

Other Sources of Funding

Course/lab fees: $13,563.00

▼ 8. Promoting Participation

What is your intended audience and how do you intend to market this to your students?

CI undergraduates from all program areas are welcome. Priority would be given first to students who are either health science or sociology majors. However, students from other disciplines who demonstrate preparation and/or competence within either area will also have priority.

The course will be announced broadly across campus to all students (e- mails/flyers/CI faculty). Students will complete an application with references. Students who have participated in UNIV 392 before will not be considered. All CI students, from any program area may apply.

If this is an event that is off campus, how do you plan to bring back the benefit of this event to campus?

During CI's International Week, there will be a presentation/poster and participation of students who took this course. Also, as separate project in Taiwan, I am working with Dr. Shih at Soochow University in Taipei on a program related to this trip that would have Soochow University students visit Los Angeles and CI.

▼ 9. Sustainability

If appropriate, indicate how the content or delivery of the project promotes sustainability at CI.

Sustainability

Taiwan as a nation is more green, culturally, than the United States. Students will learn about that culture and associated laws (e.g., limitations on refuse volume and associated penalties). We will also explore green transportation methods as Taipei was one of the first cities in the world to have a short or long-use bicycle system available throughout the city. The bicycles are used frequently with a copious number of return stations/destinations; as such, the cost is modest, too.
