MDC Updates

Table of Contents
Greetings Dolphins!

We hope the semester has been going well! As you continue to persist in your classes, join fun virtual experiences and build community with your peers - we encourage you to join our events! We also have many study skills workshops, specifically developed through student feedback from our MDC Engagement Survey late fall. We hope the sessions are helpful as you continue to navigate your classes virtually. Also note that we invite you share feedback and thoughts about your programming along the way, just let us know how we can best support you this semester.

As you start your week, don't forget to check our our weekly TikTok videos promoting the weeks events on our IG and Facebook accounts. We also have some fun TikToks in the works to keep you engaged this semester.

I also encourage you all to make sure to avail yourselves in self-care during these difficult times. It is easy to forget to do so, but I know first hand how important self-care can be for your holistic wellness. With that, be on the look out for our Destress Week early May to get some tips/tricks to participate in holistic wellness.

Lastly, I wanted to personally share my sadness and anger at the continued violence against Asian American & Pacific Islander (AAPI) communities, the continued police violence/murder of people of color and overall racial tension in the nation. These acts of violence and hate can be found throughout the history of the United States, and we must continually work towards eliminating this hate/violence in our society. With that said, I encourage you all to recommit yourselves to an anti-racist approach by educating yourself and advocating for marginalized populations. I encourage you all to take advantage of the various resource guides below and additional resources on our social media.

As always, if you need anything please let us know and have a great start to the semester!

In Solidarity,

Hiram Ramirez

AAPI Solidarity Statement

The Multicultural Dream Center (MDC) is in solidarity with its Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI) students, faculty, staff and community members. The recent acts of violence against AAPI communities is unacceptable. We renounce all acts of violence, harassment and hate speech directed at AAPI communities. We also acknowledge this violence represents a continued history of xenophobia, actions of hate and racism in the United States. We must come together to combat racism in all forms and lean into each other during these difficult times. With this in mind we have our Racial Healing & Educational Guide and Resource Guide for AAPI Students on our LinkTree under our bio.

ECONOMIC STIMULUS PAYMENTS
How You Can Support Youth Experiencing Homelessness To Access These Funds

Cash going directly to youth experiencing homelessness has been shown to significantly help these youth stabilize and exit homelessness. Economic Stimulus Payments are one way to get cash directly to young people who need it the most. We know that young people and those helping them access these funds have encountered multiple barriers. This tip sheet is the best advice we have received.

Help young people file their own 2020 taxes as soon as possible and have the tax return linked to a bank account. There will not be a non-filers portal for 2020, so tax filing is the only way for youth to be sure the IRS has their information. If this is done successfully, then the youth may still have an opportunity to access stimulus checks from 2020, as well as be in a better position to receive any 2021 stimulus payments that may be disbursed. The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) has partnered with several organizations to help people prepare and file their federal individual income tax returns for free.

Some details for youth who were incorrectly claimed on their parent/guardian’s taxes as a dependent: The IRS has stated that if the youth is eligible for the stimulus payment and has not received it, the youth should file a 2020 tax return and claim the Recovery Rebate Credit. If a young person does this, it is recommended that they attach to the return a written explanation clearly indicating that they were incorrectly claimed as a dependent on a parent’s tax return, and that they should have received the stimulus check on their own behalf. It will be helpful if the explanation is detailed and includes the years in question (e.g. parent’s/guardian’s 2018 and/or 2019 tax return) as well as the names of the taxpayers (parents/guardians) that claimed the youth to facilitate the verification process. Please note that the verification will have to be done manually and most likely will take several months. To expedite consideration, youth should file electronically and attach a pdf statement or memo within the software. Paper filing is processed more slowly than electronic filing.

The IRS uses a five-part test to determine whether a parent can claim a child as a dependent. The latest information from the IRS on dependency can be found on pages 25-35 of IRS Publication 17. This will help you and the youth determine if they were previously incorrectly claimed - a common issue encountered by youth and young adults experiencing homelessness.

1. Set limits.
It can be easy and tempting to scroll on your phone for several hours. Try planning a set amount of social media time so you remember to fit in other activities. You could schedule an alarm on your phone or ask someone to help remind you when it’s time to stop. Additionally, most mobile phones have screen time tracking apps. Remember that the limits you set for yourself will likely be different from those of your family members and friends, and that’s okay! Allow yourself time to experiment and see what works best for you.

2. Curate the content.
Notice which accounts you follow and how they make you feel, both physically and emotionally. Do certain posts make you feel stressed, constrict your breathing or cause your mood to drop? It may be a good idea to stop following these accounts. At the same time, try to consider which accounts and posts help you feel relaxed, grounded, and more present.

3. Eliminate the clutter.
One of the biggest drawbacks of social media can be a large amount of content you consume at any given moment. All the different messages, photos, and videos can begin to feel overwhelming. While it can be tempting to follow all sorts of celebrities, stores, social causes, companies, and more, see if you can set a limit for the number of accounts you follow. This way you will be able to absorb and appreciate the content, rather than perhaps mindlessly scrolling through it.

4. Maintain perspective.
While filters and different editing tools can be fun to use, they can also be misleading. If you catch yourself doubting your own self-worth as you scroll through social media, try to pause, take a deep breath and remind yourself that social media does not always reflect reality.

5. Find additional online support.
Looking for more tips about how to use social media in a healthy way and/or how to address your own stress or anxiety? You can schedule a visit with a therapist on LiveHealth Online! Plus, if you’re new to online therapy, read this blog from Dr. Lindsay Henderson, Director of Psychological Services with LiveHealth Online, to learn more about online therapy and how it helps people improve their mental health and cope with change.
