The above / below information will be read by the trainee and then discussed with the FTO.

Peer behaviors are a strong influence on peace officers. It is incumbent on every peace officer to recognize that he or she has the opportunity to influence peers by modeling positive behaviors, taking charge, and sharing information if and when appropriate.

Positive modeling behaviors include:
- Maintaining ethical standards
- Exhibiting technical competence
- Practicing officer safety
- Paying attention to duties
- Maintaining professional appearance (first impressions)
- Demonstrating respect for the community
- Taking opportunities to improve the agency and profession
- Pursuing self development

People pay more attention to what you do than what you say. Officers make hundreds of “first impressions” each shift. Your personal grooming, demeanor, language, cleanliness, equipment and expression will create a “first impression” before you say a single word. Lead by example.

A peace officer’s leadership begins with his or her realization that officers are an integral part of the community. As highly visible and specially trained members of the community, peace officers are looked upon as leaders. Some ways peace officers demonstrate leadership in the community are:
- being accessible and proactive
- being responsive to community issues and concerns
- being empathetic to the community’s specific needs
- sharing information and expertise
- facilitating problem solving
- being accountable
- serving as an example of a good citizen, both on- and off-duty
- recognizing problems or potential problems and taking action to prevent or resolve them
- influencing the community to face its problems

In addition to service while on duty, there are other ways in which officers fulfill leadership roles in the community (e.g., school boards, fire boards, coaching, service clubs, volunteer service, and elected positions).

When peace officers and community members share a common sense of values, communicate openly and regularly, and when they have a common regard for each other, the result will be trust. Trust is the critical link in the community/policing partnership.
Officers who exercise ethical leadership will learn to be effective problem solvers, better skilled to mobilize communities to address issues of crime and disorder, and proactive in developing crime prevention strategies.

What you do affects peace officers everywhere. While you may work for just one agency, the public often identifies all officers or deputies as one. There are no jurisdictional borders on the impact of your behavior.

Enhancing communication and mutual respect between officers and their agencies is extremely important. It is each peace officer’s responsibility to:

• Maintain lines of communication with:
  Peers
  Supervisors
  Administration

• Develop professional relationships with allied public safety agencies

• Share emerging tactics or information by providing:
  Training bulletins
  Professional articles
  Training Courses
