Shared Definitions

By

President’s Advisory Council on Inclusive Excellence

inclusiveexcellence@csuci.edu

(Approved by President Erika Beck)

Revised 11/2/20

These definitions are intended to uplift our campus, to build a better, more equitable, diverse, and inclusive campus. They are not intended to create or be the basis for evaluative or disciplinary measures.

INCLUSIVE EXCELLENCE is defined as collective values, engagement, and practices that support equity, diversity, and inclusion among students, staff, faculty, administrators, alumni and the community. It is essential to recognize that our institution’s success in all areas of endeavors is dependent on the promotion of inclusive excellence.

Operationalizing inclusive excellence requires intentional, active, present and future engagement for integrating and sustaining a wide spectrum of diversity within the campus community through a welcoming and safe campus climate, where the cultivation of inclusiveness in every aspect of campus life is every member’s responsibility. For someone to work towards becoming excellent at inclusion means many things, for example, advancing the demographic diversity of our institution, working to surface and address our biases, and acting with the intention of fostering inclusivity by ensuring that all voices, perspectives, and opinions are being heard.

EQUITY is defined as fairness, access, opportunity and advancement for students, faculty and staff. Improving equity involves increasing justice and fairness within the procedures and processes of institutions or systems, as well as in the distribution of resources.

Operationalizing the value of equity requires a building of an understanding of the historical root causes of outcome disparities within our society, cultivation of the habit of asking questions that account for these inequities in the decision-making process, acting with direct, explicit and intentional efforts to raise awareness about fairness as well as racial and social justice, and transforming university policies and practices that create or worsen inequality, especially for historically underserved populations of students, faculty, and staff.

DIVERSITY is not defined by the California State University Executive Orders 1096 and 1097; however, they value “diversity and fostering understanding and mutual respect.”¹ In support of the Executive Orders, CSU Channel Islands embraces and supports differences and intersectional identities, including abilities (physical and mental), age, citizenship status, culture, First Nations (federal, state, and tribal recognition), gender identity and expression, nationality, marital status, medical condition, neurological differences, race/ethnicity (color, ancestry, indigeneity), religious/spiritual identity, sexual identity, sexual orientation, veteran or military status, and diverse characteristics that make individuals in our community unique. Also in conjunction with the Executive Order, we assert that “all individuals within our community have the right to participate” in CSUCI programs and activities, free from all forms of harassment, discrimination, and retaliation.

In addition to the identity categories named above, we at CSU Channel Islands embrace individual differences (e.g., personality, language, learning styles, body size, physical characteristics, and life experiences) and social differences (e.g., education status, degree obtained, job status or position within the university, socioeconomic status, citizenship and non-citizenship status, and any political affiliation). We commit to the ongoing work of ensuring that our collective experience is enriched because of our diversity.

Operationalizing the campus value of diversity requires an intentional and ongoing effort to make explicit and implicit biases visible and creating a culture that embraces diversity at multiple levels:

- internally (personal responsibility within the individual dealing with explicit and implicit biases),
- interpersonally (relationships individuals have with each other),
- institutionally (within organizations created to structure society), and
- culturally (within the values, norms, belief systems, behavioral patterns, of groups of people).

---

COLLEGIALLY is defined as individual accountability and shared responsibility for behaviors that contribute to the mission of CSU Channel Islands, and that strengthen the potential for all members of the campus community to consistently experience civil, positive, and professional working conditions.

Collegiality does not require congeniality, deference to popular opinion, or the performance of pleasantries. It does not imply value for being compliant or agreeable. To the contrary, collegiality is what makes productive dissent, argumentation, and collaboration across differences possible. It recognizes the essential need for dissent, diversity, and inclusion and for open, honest, and clear conversations in the work that we do as faculty, staff, administrators, and students. At the same time, it takes into account inequities of all sorts that may threaten psychological safe spaces for all.

Collegiality is generally understood to mean cooperative interaction and respect, which we define operationally through observable patterns of behavior.

Operationalizing collegiality includes but is not limited to supporting each other in:

- engaging in mutual learning to promote the work of equity building;
- communicating in clear, constructive ways that recognize the equal dignity and worth of all members of the campus community;
- surfacing conflict in productive ways that encourage healthy dissent while promoting transparency and inclusive opportunities to work toward resolution.
- reviewing/establishing equitable campus and program policies and procedures, and working with others to make changes to these when necessary;
- engaging collaboratively and following through on all assigned and accepted professional functions;
- cultivating an atmosphere of trust and collaboration to help us navigate our differences.